

GRA

- Fresh from his fall, and fiercer grapple join'd,
Throttled at length in th' air, expir'd and fell. Milton.
Or did his genius
Know mine the stronger demon, fear'd the grapple,
And, looking round him, found this nook of fate,
To skulk behind my sword. Dryden's Don Sebastian.
2. Close fight.
In the grapple I boarded them; on the instant they got clear of our ship, so I alone became their prisoner. Shakef. Hamlet.
3. Iron instrument by which one ship fastens on another.
But Cymon soon his crooked grapples cast,
Which with tenacious hold his foes embrac'd. Dryden.
- GRA'PPLEMENT. n. f. [from grapple.] Close fight; hostile embrace.
They catching hold of him, as down he lent,
Him backward overthrew, and down him stay'd
With their rude hands and grievous grapplement. Fairy Queen.
- GRA'SHOPPER. n. f. [from grass and hop.] A small insect that hops in the summer grass. The cicada of the Latins, or cicala of the Italians, is often by the poets translated grashopper, but improperly.
Her waggon spokes made of long spinners legs,
The cover of the wings of grashoppers. Shakef. Ro. and Jul.
Grashoppers eat up the green of whole countries. Bacon.
Where silver lakes, with verdant shadows crown'd,
Disperse a grateful chinefs all around;
The grashopper avoids the untainted air,
Nor in the midst of Summer ventures there. Addison.
The women were of such an enormous stature, that we appeared as grashoppers before them. Addison's Spectator.
- GRA'SPER. See GRAZIER.
- TO GRASP. v. a. [from grasp, Italian.]
1. To hold in the hand; to gripe.
O fool that I am, that thought I could grasp water and bind the wind. Sidney, b. ii.
In his right hand
Grasping ten thousand thunders, which he sent
Before him, such as in their souls infix'd Plagues. Milton's Paradise Lost, b. vi.
Kings, by grasping more than they could hold,
First made their subjects, by oppression, bold. Denham.
Doom, as they please, my empire not to stand,
I'll grasp my sceptre with my dying hand. Dryd. Ind. Emp.
2. To seize; to catch at.
This grasping of the militia of the kingdom into their own hands, was defied the Summer before. Clarendon.
- TO GRASP. v. n.

So endless and exorbitant are the desires of men, that they will grasp at all, and can form no scheme of perfect happiness with less. Swift.
2. To struggle; to strive; to grapple. Not now in use.
See, his face is black and full of blood;
His hands abroad display'd, as one that grasps
And tugg'd for life. Shakefpeare's Henry VI. p. ii.
3. To gripe; to encroach.
Like a miser 'midst his store,
Who grasps and grasps 'till he can hold no more. Dryden.
- GRASP. n. f. [from the verb.]
1. The gripe or seizure of the hand.
Nor wanted in his grasp
What seem'd both spear and shield. Milton's Paradise Lost.
This hand and sword have been acquainted well;
It should have come before into my grasp.
To kill the ravisher. Dryden's Don Sebastian.
The left arm is a little defaced, though one may see it held something in its grasp formerly. Addison on Italy.
2. Possession; hold.
I would not be the villain that thou think'st
For the whole space that's in the tyrant's grasp.
And the rich East to boot. Shakefpeare's Macbeth.
3. Power of seizing.
Within the direful grasp
Of savage hunger, or of savage heat.
They looked upon it as their own, and had it even within their grasp. Clarendon, b. viii.
- GRA'SPER. n. f. [from grasp.] One that grasps, seizes, or catches at.
- GRASS. n. f. [from gras, Saxon.] The common herbage of the field on which cattle feed; an herb with long narrow leaves.
Ye are grown fat as the heifer at gras, and bellow as bulls. Jer. l. 11.
The trade of beef for foreign exportation was prejudiced, and almost sunk; for the flesh being young, and only gras fed, was thin, light and moist, and not of a substance to endure the salt, or be preserved by it, for long voyages, or a slow consumption. Temple.
You'll be no more your former you;
But for a blooming nymph will pass;
Just fifteen, coming Summer's gras. Swift.
- GRASS of Parnassus. n. f. [from parnassia, Latin.]

GRA

- It hath a rose-shaped flower of five large leaves, and five small at the bottom fringed, of a greenish colour, and planted orbicularly: out of the flower-cup arises the pointal, which turns to an oval membranaceous fruit, having but one cell filled with seeds. This plant grows wild in moist meadows, particularly in the North. It is called parnassia from mount Parnassus, where it was supposed to grow; and because the cattle feed on it, it obtained the name of gras, though the plant has no resemblance to the gras kind. A. Miller.
- TO GRASS. v. n. [from the noun.] To breed gras; to become pasture.
Land arable, driven, or worn to the proof,
With oats ye may sow it, the sooner to grass,
More soon to be pasture, to bring it to paws. Tass. Husband.
- GRASS-PLOT. n. f. [from grass and plot.] A small level covered with short gras.
Here on this grass-plot, in this very place,
Come and sport. Shakefpeare's Tempest.

What peer hath been suborn'd to grate on you,
That you should feel this lawless bloody book
Of forg'd rebellion with a seal divine? Shakef. Henry IV.
I have grated upon my good friends for three reprieves for you, or else you had looked through the grates. Shakefpeare.
Paradoxing is of great use; but the faculty must be so tenderly managed as not to grate upon the truth and reason of things. L'Estrange's Fables.
This grated harder upon, and raised greater tumults and boilings in the hearts of men, than the seeming unreasonableness of former articles. South's Sermons.
- I never
